RUMANIA'S GREATEST SEAPORT CAPTURED

TOLL OF LAKE STORM OF "BLACK FRIDAY" MAY REACH 48 TOTAL

FOUR SHIPS ARE KNOWN FOUNDERED IN VICIOUS SEAS

Three Bodies from the Steamer Medira Brought Into Toledo; Thirteen Missing from the Boat

STEAMER COLGATE DOWN

Captain Grashaw Only Survivor of Boat Which Sank an Hour After the Steamer Filer Sank Friday

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 23.—Probable toll of Lake Erie's "Black Friday" storm jumped to forty-six dead Monday, with the arrival in Toledo of the steamer Matthews with three bodies from the foundered steamer Merida, and a report that four other bodies of this ill-fated boat had been recovered.

The four bodies were recovered by the freighter Charlotte G. Breitling and taken to Sandwich, Ontario. One of the four was found in a badly battered yawl marked "James B. Colgate." The other three wore life belts marked Merida.

Only seven bodies have been recovered—all of them probably from the Merida.

The probable dead: Merida, six bodies recovered, fourteen missing and probably dead.

Whaleback James B. Colgate, one body recovered, nineteen missing one saved.

Schooner D. I. Filer, six missing, one saved.

Besides the above named ships, the Marshall F. Butters is known to have been sunk.

The Merida, owned by James Playfair of Midland, Ontario, sailed from Fort William, Ontario, the middle of last week. The Merida was last seen Friday morning at 10 o'clock by the steamer Britton, off the southeast shoals of Lake Erie.

Captain Cunningham of the Matthews reported the bodies were found fifty miles west of Long Point, Ontario. He said the freighter Charlotte G. Breitling had also picked up four bodies in the same vicinity, believed to have been from the Merida, taking them to Sandwich, Ontario.

The Merida, bound for Buffalo, was under the command of Captain H. S. Jones of Buffalo. Her home port is Chicago.

Thirty-four dead is the now known toll of the storm, with possibly twenty-one of the Merida's crew unaccounted for.

The report of Captain Alexander McDonald of the Harvey Gould, that he had found the lake "full of wreckage," which he could not identify, caused the fear that other steamers as yet unreported, may have foundered with loss of life.

Captains Only Survivor

Captain Walter J. Grashaw, Cleveland skipper, was the only survivor of the whaleback James B. Colgate, crew of twenty-five. He was picked up from a raft Sunday off Conneaut and taken to that port.

The Colgate went down the night of what came to be known as "Black Friday" in marine circles. Six men were lost when the steamer Filer sank in Lake Erie on Friday. Earlier that same stormy night the steamer Marshall F. Butters foundered, but its crew of thirteen men were saved.

Less than an hour after the Filer sank the Colgate, by far the largest of the three victim vessels, went down miles away.

Exposure May Bring Deaths

Exposure may add to the list of dead. Captain Walter J. Grashaw, Cleveland skipper of the Colgate, who was picked up after he had clung to a raft for thirty-six hours, is in a critical condition in a hospital at Conneaut. Some unidentified wreckage has been sighted.

A cordial invitation to be present is extended to the women of the city.

AUSTRIAN PREMIER ASSASSINATED BY SOCIALIST EDITOR

Count Karl Stuerghk, Powerful Factor in Austrian Affairs, Killed by Pistol

A LONG OFFICE HOLDER

Premier in Public Office Almost Continuously from 1908; Formed Present Cabinet

VIENNA, Oct. 23.—The Austrian premier, Count Karl Stuerghk, was assassinated while at dinner Saturday by Dr. Frederick Adler, a publisher.

The assassination was purely political and was induced by his refusal to convene parliament, according to the statement of Adler, shortly after his arrest.

Dr. Adler is an eccentric and super-radical socialist, sometimes known as "the Liebknecht of Austria." He is editor of Der Kampf. At first he declined to reveal his motives, but after being locked up he broke down and declared the premier's political policies had led him to the deed.

Stuerghk Powerful Diplomat

Count Karl Stuerghk has been a powerful factor in Austrian and Austro-Hungarian affairs for almost twenty years. Only once in all that stormy time has he been out of elective or appointive office. That was during the period following the fall of the Windische-Graetz ministry.

During the most turbulent period of internal Austro-Hungarian politics, from 1908 to 1914, he was almost continuously in office, first as minister of public works from 1909 to 1911 and then, on the fall of that ministry, he was asked to form a new cabinet. He has been prime minister since that time.

Educated for Politics

Count Stuerghk was born at Graz in 1859. He was educated for a political career, and on leaving the University of Graz entered the service of the government. This was in 1881. Ten years later he was elected to the reichsrath.

Telegraphing from Vienna a few days ago, a correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin said a ministerial crisis in Austria was considered unavoidable. The dispatch did not specify the reasons and little information has reached this country in regard to the current Austrian political conditions, although there have been many dispatches in regard to the political strife in Hungary. The Austrian parliament has not been in session since before the war.

STATE UNIVERSALISTS AND UNITARIANS MEET

OSHKOSH, Wis., Oct. 23.—Wisconsin members of the Unitarian and Universalist churches arrived in Oshkosh Monday for the fifth joint convention of these denominations. Rev. A. McHenry, pastor of St. John's church, which will entertain the gathering, expects large delegations of liberals from various parts of the state, for whom a program has been arranged, including a half dozen speakers of high rank in the field of liberal Christianity in the United States.

The sessions will be mostly of one general group and all will take place at the local universalist edifice.

EVEN SEVEN CENT BREAD IS CHEAPEST FOOD AT THE PRICE SAY EXPERTS

Despite the announcement of local bakers that bread will soar to the unprecedented price of 7 cents for a pound loaf on Tuesday, an investigator with an eye for figures has discovered that government scientists and other food experts agree in declaring that bread—or wheat flour—is relatively the cheapest articles of food obtainable.

From the standpoint of water and waste purchased in every article of subsistence and their comparative food value, flour statistics show conclusively that its consumption deserves to be doubled instead of being minimized as it is today because

Lost Sister of Andrew Furuseth Is Found on Lewis Valley Farm

Mrs. John Dittenger, "lost sister" of Andrew Furuseth, famous secretary of the Seamen's Union, who was discovered by The TRIBUNE on a farm in Lewis Valley, unaware of the fact that the brother she had never seen was only a few miles away until it was too late to see him. The picture was taken just before her marriage twenty-three years ago. Above, Furuseth's sister and parents.

Another Attack on the City Believed Imminent, Say Advisors to United States Agents

REPORT GENERAL KILLED

De Facto Leader Sent to Round Up Bandits Reported Slain in Battle of Saturday

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 23.—Villista bandits have surrounded the western side of Chihuahua City, after driving the Mexican de facto government troops into the outskirts, and another attack upon the northern Mexico capital is believed imminent, declared a report reaching United States government agents here Monday. Verification of this is lacking and Carranza officials still insist that the de facto troops are driving the bandits toward Santa Ysabel.

An official Carranza statement Saturday and made public Monday by Consul Soriano Bravo states that heavy fighting between Villistas and de facto forces continued throughout Friday and Saturday with very heavy losses on both sides. The statement admitted Colonel Salinas was wounded.

That Gen. Ozuna, commander of the expedition of Mexican de facto troops sent to capture Villa, was killed in Saturday's battle with the bandits, his command cut to pieces and Colonel Martin Salinas, who succeeded to the command after Ozuna's death, was seriously wounded, were the reports received here Monday by agents of United States government departments and transmitted to Washington.

ONLY EIGHT MILES AWAY WHEN SAILOR TALKED AT HOLMEN

First Word of Brother's Nearness Brought Few Hours Too Late by Reporter

IS FOUND AT NEW LISBON

The Veteran Seaman Is Overjoyed When Word of Discovery Is Telephoned

In a three-room house on a sandy farm in Lewis Valley, The TRIBUNE Sunday afternoon located Andrew Furuseth's baby sister, whom he never saw, and for whom he was searching all during his two-day stay in La Crosse county. She is Mrs. Oline Dittenger. Her address is R. F. D., No. 1, Holmen.

While Andrew Furuseth was talking to a crowd at Holmen about the Seamen's Bill, scanning every feminine face in the audience for some trait of family resemblance by which he might identify the little sister he never saw, Mrs. John Dittenger was working about the isolated farmhouse not ten miles away, all unconscious of her brother's nearness. The veteran sailor's itinerary had carried him to New Lisbon before The TRIBUNE could verify the relationship and establish the connection between him and the lost Oline. Tied up with speaking engagements which he may not cancel, Mr. Furuseth cannot hurry to his sister at once, but he is planning to make a visit as soon as his time will permit. He said something savage in Norwegian into the telephone Sunday night when The TRIBUNE told him that his sister had been within his reach on Saturday, as he realized that the reunion was indefinitely postponed.

Found in Long Search

Mrs. Dittenger was found by two TRIBUNE men on a fifty mile search through the country-side by automobile, after a "tip" furnished by Matt Knutson of West Salem. Mr. Knutson had formerly been a neighbor of Mrs. Dittenger. When he saw in Saturday's TRIBUNE that Mr. Furuseth was looking for a sister in La Crosse county, he thought he remembered a resemblance between the famous labor leader and the woman he used to know. So he called Harry Watkins, secretary of the county republican committee, and the latter got into touch with The TRIBUNE.

Based only on a recollection of a family likeness, it seemed a wild goose chase the TRIBUNE men went upon until they knocked at the door of the Dittenger home two miles this side of Stevestown. When Mrs. Dittenger appeared at the door, however, it was apparent that the search

MACKENSEN'S FORCES ENTER CITY THROUGH WHICH PASSED A GREAT AMOUNT OF RUMANIAN WAR SUPPLIES

PAPERS "DOPE" IT ELECTION IS ONE TOSS-UP THUS FAR

Three Chicago Dailies Concede "Swing to Wilson" But There They Disagree

HOW FAR DOES SWING GO?

Ohio Only Republican State Conceded Lost But Others Are Admitted to Be Doubtful

Election predictions were the big interest in the Sunday papers, and while disagreeing upon the outcome, the three great Chicago dailies, the "Herald," "Tribune" and "Examiner," find considerable of a "swing to Wilson."

The "Herald," which may be fairly classed as independent, makes out the best case for Wilson. The "Tribune," a strong Hughes organ, concedes defeat in republican states, but declares that Illinois is the "pivotal state," and claims it for Hughes. The "Examiner," bitterly opposed to Wilson, gives him Ohio and, on the strength of a joint survey made by the "Examiner" and "more than one hundred papers throughout the country" and a "nationwide postcard canvass," says there will be "many surprises in store for the country" in republican states.

The "Herald's" Guess

The "Herald's" summary follows: For Wilson:

The south, including Arizona, Missouri and Maryland, electoral vote 178
Doubtful, with strong Wilson tendencies—
Ohio 24
Wisconsin 13
Washington 17
Connecticut 7
Nebraska 8
Colorado 6
West Virginia 8

Total 73
Total electoral vote 251
Necessary majority 266
Lacking for a majority 15
Extra doubtful, "toss-up" states—
Illinois 29
Indiana 15
Idaho 4
North Dakota 5
South Dakota 5
Montana 4
Nevada 3
Wyoming 2

Total 67
Doubtful mid-west, Hughes leaning—
Minnesota 12
Oregon 5
Kansas 10
Utah 4

How They Dope It

The basis of this information, as stated by the "Herald," is as follows: Minnesota—Erick L. Thornton, republican state chairman, "admits grave danger."
North Dakota—"G. O. P. disturbed over reports."
Ohio—"Put in Wilson by republican authorities."
Illinois—"More doubtful than ever."

Wisconsin—"In extra doubtful list, exhibits Wilson tendencies."
Indiana—"Still on the fence."
Michigan—"Swinging to Wilson rapidly. This is the republican testimony."

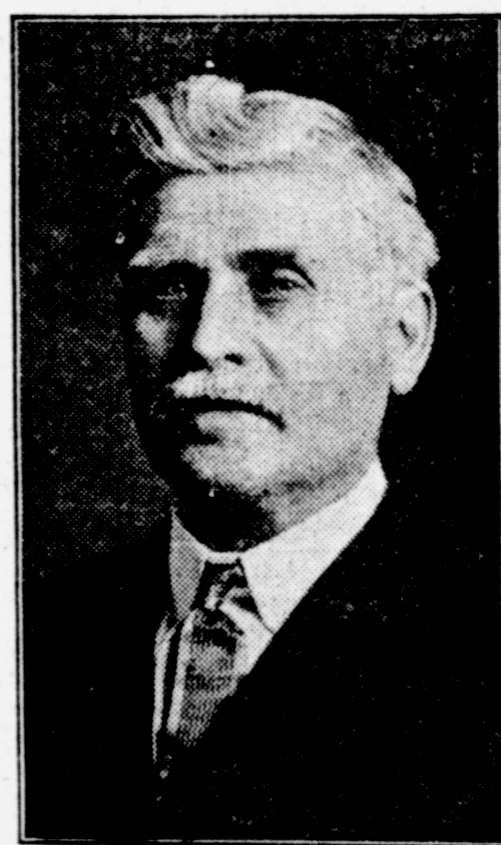

Washington—"The one coast state which the G. O. P. admits is doubtful; swinging rapidly to Wilson."
Connecticut—"Doubtful, looks like Wilson. This is unprejudiced testimony. New York Mail (Hughes), made canvass showing Wilson."

These states are specified because normally they are republican. The republicans claim New York and New Jersey, and while the republicans dispute both, the "Herald" thinks the G. O. P. has the better chance. New Mexico is mentioned as republican and West Virginia as in doubt. The "Herald" thinks Illinois decidedly close, but the "Tribune" (Chicago) claims it for Hughes.

Reasons given by the "Herald" for the swing to Wilson are that Hughes' attack on the eight-hour law has proved a boomerang, that Roosevelt and the Hughes Lusitania speech are driving the German-Americans back to Wilson, and the fact that in the west party lines have lost their meaning and the canvass is personal.

Business Man of Long Residence In City is Dead

JOHN HULBERG

JOHN L. HULBERG DIES EARLY MONDAY ILL FOR A YEAR

Leading Merchant Was Son of Pioneers Who Came to the County in 1852

FIRM FORMED IN 1876

Had Been Partner of Thomas Stavrum in Business for Forty Years

John L. Hulberg, aged 67, for forty years a member of the clothing firm of Cavanaugh & Hulberg, and one of the most prominent merchants in La Crosse, died at 3:40 Monday morning at his residence, 704 Division street. Mr. Hulberg has been falling in health for a year and for some months has not been active in business. Word of his death caused a shock among his friends throughout the city.

Son of Pioneers

Mr. Hulberg was born in November 8, 1849, in Ringsaker, Norway. When the boy was three years old his parents, Ole and Ellen Hulberg, migrated to America. They came immediately to Wisconsin, settling first in Larson's Coulee, near West Salem. That section of La Crosse county was then but thinly populated, and Mr. Hulberg's parents were among the first to locate in the coulee. Within a few years the elder Mr. Hulberg removed his family to a farm in Lewis Valley, near Stevestown. He was the second settler of that district. Mr. Hulberg received his early education in the district schools near his father's home.

At the age of twenty-five years Mr. Hulberg decided to abandon farm life for that of business. Coming to La Crosse he took a course in the old Wallace business college. For two years following that he clerked in a clothing establishment in La Crosse. Mr. Thomas Stavrum was at that time in the employ of another clothing merchant here. The young men met, liked each other, and decided to cast their lot together. In 1876 Mr. Stavrum and Mr. Hulberg opened a clothing store at 28 Main street, then opposite the Mons Anderson general store.

Several years later the partners removed to their present location at 228 Main street.

Son Survives

Mr. Hulberg was married in La Crosse on May 19, 1880, to Miss Anna Erickson, who survives him. Mr. Hulberg is also survived by one son, Oscar H. Hulberg, and three daughters. They are Miss Edna and Miss Wilma Hulberg, La Crosse, and Mrs. Wilfred Smale, also of La Crosse. Four sisters and two brothers survive. They are Louis Hulberg, Stevestown, Wis.; Magnus Hulberg, Minneapolis; Miss Josie Hulberg, Stevestown; Mrs. Nels Quandahl, Pelican Rapids, Minn.; Mrs. A. N. vania.

RAILROAD FEEDING RUMANIA CUT OFF FROM BLACK SEA

The Victorious Germans Push Through Ruins of Trajan's Wall in Their Great Offensive

TEUTON ADVANCE RAPID

Mackensen Pushes Men Twelve Miles in Two Days; Russo-Rumanians Believed Demoralized

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Constanza, Rumania's greatest seaport, has fallen before Field Marshal Mackensen's armies, it was officially announced Monday afternoon.

Mackensen's left wing is now approaching Cernavoda, the war office announced.

Capture of the city is the greatest single achievement for the central powers since Rumania entered the war eight weeks ago. The victory is hailed by German military men as of more importance than all the gains made by the allies since the Somme offensive began.

Victory Gained in Rout

Official dispatches from the German and Bulgarian war office indicate that the Russo-Rumanians have suffered a disastrous rout.

Smashing northward along the Black sea coast, Mackensen's army occupied first the Rumanian port of Tuzla and then swept onward through strongly fortified Rumanian lines of defense, marching twelve miles to Constanza in a little more than two days. The rapidity of the Teutonic advance is accepted as an indication that the Russians and Rumanians became demoralized and made an extremely disordered retreat.

An official statement from Sofia earlier in the day, representing the capture of a village six miles south of Constanza, prepared Berlin for news of a great victory.

No surprise was manifested here when it was announced that Mackensen had pushed on through the ruins of the old Trajan's wall and had occupied Constanza itself.

Cut Off Supplies

Since Rumania entered the war, Russian transports have been bringing Slav troops, munitions and other war supplies to the aid of the Rumanians. Large bodies of Russian troops have arrived in Rumania through the port of Constanza, whose capture by the central powers effectively puts an end to the transportation of reinforcements via the Black sea.

The thirty-five mile Constanza-Cernavoda railway, leading across the Danube, is the carrier over which Rumania has derived a large quantity of her supplies. The Teutonic right wing is now astride that railway at Constanza, while Mackensen's center and left wing are swinging forward to capture the remainder of the road. Mackensen is aiming principally at Cernavoda and the great bridge over the Danube.

Admit Retirement

PETROGRAD, Oct. 23.—The Russo-Rumanians continue their retirement in Dobruja under enemy pressure, though offering stubborn resistance, it was officially announced Monday.

In the Trotus, Ortuz and Slanie valleys in Transylvania, the Rumanians attacked the enemy and compelled a slight Austro-German retirement. In western Moldavia the Rumanians have been successful in stubborn fighting.

The fighting on the Galician-Volhynia front is slackening. Austro-German attempts to cross the Beldurka, north of Brody, were repelled by Russian fire.

For the second time since the Germans began their campaign to crush Rumania, an appeal for help has come from Bucharest. The Petrograd correspondent of the Daily News returning from the Rumanian capital, telegraphed that he was asked by a high Russian personage to emphasize the seriousness of the situation.

Petrograd dispatches Monday revealed for the first time the reasons for the severe defeat suffered by the Rumanians in Dobruja. Premier Bratiano believed when Rumania entered the war that Bulgaria either would sue for peace or would not fight against Rumania or Russia. Only weak forces were left to guard the Bulgarian border while the main Rumanian army poured into Transylvania.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE KEEPS ALL MY FAMILY WELL AND STRONG

Vigorous Letter Praising Father John's Medicine by New York Mother.

"Father John's Medicine is the only medicine I rely on when my boy has a bad cold or is feeling weak and run down," says Mrs. John Kelly, of 5 W. 101st St., New York City. "I have known the value of the medicine for five years and hope this word of praise may urge others to try it. I have taken it myself and it has done me a lot of good." (Signed) Mrs. John Kelly, 5 W. 101st St., New York City.

Many families keep Father John's Medicine on hand constantly in case of emergency, because they know that as a tonic and body-builder it has more than fifty years of success. It is a safe family medicine because it does not contain alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form, but is all pure and wholesome nourishment for those who are weak and run down. It gives them strength to ward off disease.

LARGE PONTOON BRIDGE LAUNCHED AT PRAIRIE

NORTH M'GREGOR, Ia.—(Special.)—The new pontoon bridge for this channel, and built in the Prairie du Chien boat yards, is being launched in the Prairie du Chien channel. The finishing touches will be given the craft, and it will be towed across the river about November 1, and put in place at this point, across the North McGregor channel.

Well Driller Comes

The Milwaukee company's expert artesian well driller arrived Thursday with his drilling outfit, and will sink two wells at the location of the new round house, machine and car shops. These two wells will furnish abundant water supply for all these departments and the big water tank for locomotive supply.

Builds Protection Fence

The Milwaukee company is building a tight board fence six feet high along the entire length of the new county road they built, which winds around the West Yards hills. At the highest part of the new roadway, there is a steep bank and at the base lies the yards, and the location of the shops and round house. To protect travelers along the road from possible danger, the company is building the fence. The view along this road is magnificent, affording a clear sweep down the valley over the entire yards with hills in brown and gold on either side, and beyond the Mississippi. Sunday there were fifty-nine automobiles over this new road, carrying people from many miles away, to see the big work going on here. It is some sight, too, to see two monstrous steam shovels at work, one on the north side, and one on the south side, cutting away at the hills to make required room. It surely is a case of "Moving the Hills."

Weddings

Word was received from Sioux Falls, S. D., of the marriage of Miss Nellie O'Brien and Mr. Roger Kinsella. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. O'Brien, who moved from McGregor to Sioux Falls some four years ago. Mr. O'Brien formerly owned the North McGregor grocery store of P. H. O'Brien & Son, and his daughter, Nellie, was his bookkeeper. In May, 1919, he closed out his store, and since August of that year, the building has been occupied by the North McGregor Savings bank.

Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock, at St. Mary's church at McGregor occurred the marriage of Mrs. Anna Magnuson and Mr. A. B. Hahn, Father Horsfield performing the ceremony. The bride and groom are North McGregor residents. They were attended by Mrs. P. F. Cassidy and Mr. I. T. Hahn. A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride. They are now at home to friends at the home of the groom.

Tuesday evening, October 17, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. W. Cole, occurred the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Louise Oehring and Mr. Daniel F. McCoy. The ceremony was performed at 8:15 o'clock, by Rev. Peddicord of the M. E. church. Miss Clara Haberichter of Monona, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Otto Globke, best man. After the wedding, dinner was served, the couple left for a honeymoon trip, and on their return will go to housekeeping, their home having been prepared for them.

ESTABLISHES BIRTH REGULATION CLINIC

By GEORGE MARTIN

(United Press Staff Correspondent) New York Oct. 23.—"The poor, century-behind-the-times public officials of this country might just as well forget their moss grown statutes and accept birth control as an established fact. My new national plan makes it as inevitable as night and day."

Mrs. Margaret Sanger within the last forty-eight hours has established semi-secretly in this city, the first out and out birth control oral clinic in the United States the law, a federal indictment and numerous arrests all over the country to the contrary notwithstanding.

"Four more secret clinics will be running in New York within a week," she said. "In less than a year there will be clinics in Washington, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Denver, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, Portland, Seattle, and Butte. They are every one organized and ready to open the minute I say the word. The Washington clinic will open within a few days."

Mrs. Sanger declared 97 per cent of Child labor and 98 per cent of prostitution could be eliminated by adherence to her plans of birth regulation.

Sound Body and Mind.

Not all the battles have been fought with the sword and shield, not all rebellions have been struggled out on the field of battle, not all achievements reached by the nobility. Men have come to realize that sound bodies and minds are of less importance than sound spirits.

The present-day Greeks are supposed to be the descendants of the men who won Marathon and Salamis. Of course the breed of modern Greeks (as is true about every other people) is somewhat mixed, but there is much in the Greeks of today to remind us of the men who built the Parthenon.

The Other Question

The sexton of a certain church the other afternoon had conducted a party round the ancient edifice, and despite dropping more than one "gentle int" it appeared as if the sexton was to go unrewarded.

In the porch the leader of the party paused a moment.

"I suppose," he said, "you've been here many years?"

"Forty," replied the old man, "an' it's a werry strange thing as whenever I'm a-showing a party out of the porch they alus asks me that question or (with emphasis) the other."

"Indeed!" smiled the visitor. "And what may the other be?"

"What I calls question number two," replied the sexton, calmly, "is jest this—'Samiwell, is tips allowed?' And Samiwell allus answers, 'Tips is allowed!'"

The hint was taken, as was the tip.

THE TRIBUNE'S DAILY TRAVELETTE

(By Mikah)

This is the Ethiopia of the Bible, and it is almost unchanged, since the birth of civilization. The line of despots that rule Abyssinia today are the lineal descendants of Nenelek, the son of the Queen of Sheba and King Solomon. They seem to have inherited very little of the well known wisdom of their famous sire; however, for Abyssinia is today the unregenerate ragamuffin among nations and also the picturesque remnant of the world's oldest civilization.

For Abyssinia, surrounded by tropical wilderness and without a sea port is a country apart from the modern world—a country of turbaned and sandaled men; of veiled women wearing silver anklets; of mighty hunters who still take their game with leopards and hawks as in Biblical days; a land where gentlemen live by plunder and monks by alms, and a man has as many wives as he can buy or steal.

Abyssinia is a fortress of antiquity, defying the world by its sheer physical impenetrability. But a few degrees from the equator, it is a great mass of igneous mountain ranges flung down upon a tropical plain. The interior is healthy upland cut by great gorges many of which are wholly impassable. In the midst of this wilderness is Lake Tsena, forty-seven miles long and more than five thousand feet above sea level. It is the source of the Blue Nile.

Abyssinia is a progressive—about all it gives the world is coffee, which is native there—but it has the distinction of being one of the most interesting and little known countries in the world.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

A MOVIE EVENT

BY MARCELLA HAYES

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The lights went out, the curtain rolled up and the empty white square flashed on the screen upon which, in a minute or two, would follow thrilling scenes of love and adventure in filmland. The orchestra played "Here Comes Tootsie," and altogether it was a moment of general expectation. Mrs. Smith rolled up her crochet work and stuck it into her bag, looking anxiously between times at the empty seat beside her.

"I wonder if he's sick?" she worried. "I just thought yesterday when he came in without an overcoat that he'd catch cold. Seems to me the folks at home ought to take better care of him."

Then he came, stuck his hat in its place and pulled down the seat.

"I'm a little late," he said.

"Yes, and I was worrying. You had no overcoat on yesterday and it was cold. I'm glad to see you've got it out today. It was the same way last week when you came in all that drizzle with no umbrella. Your folks oughtn't to allow you to do those things."

"Folks?"

"Why, yes. Haven't you got any?"

"Yes, a daughter, but she isn't at home."

"Do you mean you live by yourself?"

"Yes. What's wrong about that?"

"Nothing. Only. Well, you're no worse off than I am. I live alone too. Alfred, my son, has been away for more than a year."

"You don't say!" His tone lacked interest because, the butcher and baker and candlestick maker having advertised all their wares, the coming attractions having been announced and the operator shown his number, the name of the ensuing feature was given, followed by the faces of the cast.

Then the man sighed deeply. "Don't you like the Keystone comedies?" she was impelled by her curiosity to ask.

"Oh, yes, they're all right, but—I may as well tell you. When I was getting some winter things out of the trunk today—I came across some stuff of Mary's—dolls and things she had when she was little—and I've been thinking about her all day. And here just before I left the house didn't a letter come from her chock full of news. She'd been working in an office, but she had an offer from a photoplay company. Mary's awfully pretty—curly hair and big eyes and everything. She's acting now and getting along fine, she says. She is getting fifty dollars a week and says she is going to send for me soon."

"Isn't that just fine?" sympathized his neighbor.

"Yes, but that isn't all. Here she's gone and engaged herself to a chap, going to be married in a month."

"You don't say! That's too bad when she's doing so well."

"But she won't give up her acting. She'll go ahead with that after she's married as now. I think it's queer. I guess I'm an old fogey, maybe, but I can't get used to it. I don't know whether I'll go or not. Don't believe I'd feel at home in a place like that."

The audience grew noisy over some capers of the police squad falling downstairs, but Mrs. Smith's sympathetic eyes were on the man beside her. The doings in the rectangle were nothing to this drama.

"I guess you're right," she nodded. "My son's in New York, too, working and making good money. He sends me plenty but keeps writing for me to break up here and go to him. It's a queer place though and I've always been afraid to make the change. There! Isn't that disgusting the way those people beat each other up. I hope your daughter doesn't do any of that kind of stuff."

"No, she's with the—let me see, the Movograph Company. It's a new one. I don't know as I've ever seen any of their plays."

"It must be new. Wouldn't it be funny if they should show here and your Mary be in it?"

"I was just thinking that. There, thank goodness, that's over. Somehow I don't feel like looking at nonsense today."

The rectangle was blank a minute and then came the title of the next film—"When Dreams Come True," produced by the Movograph Company.

"Why, there it is!" gasped Mrs. Smith. "Maybe Mary's in it. Look! There's the cast. What's your name?"

"Jones."

"Mary Jones!" repeated Mrs. Smith in disappointed tones. "Well, it isn't there."

And indeed it wasn't.

The first was a garden scene where the earl reprimands his son for a misspent life—no women in the picture at all. But while they are talking a girl bounds in—the earl's granddaughter—who rushes up to her father and throws her arms around his neck.

Mr. Jones sprang up. "Mary—that's Mary!" he cried shaking all over. "It's just like her exactly. But, oh, I wish she wouldn't put her arms around strangers!"

"Sit down," Mrs. Smith pulled anxiously at his sleeve. "People are looking! Remember, it's only in a picture and—"

But the words died on her lips. The scene had shifted to a carpenter's shop in which, like Adam Bede, a young man was working honestly and with a will. The earl's granddaughter was slipping up behind him ready to cover his eyes with her

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Back-achy or have Bladder trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels, removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is an inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

hand. But it was the carpenter who concerned Mrs. Smith.

"Alfred!" she gasped. "There's my Alfred!"

"And he's kissing my Mary," protested her agitated neighbor. "And she's to be married to another man. I won't have it!"

"So he's a carpenter!" said Mrs. Smith, leaning forward with disapproval. "And all his education and college gone for nothing. He always wanted to be a lawyer."

"But it's only a picture," it was Mr. Jones' turn to remind her.

"That's so! But anyhow I'm going to write him about being so effeminate with girls when he doesn't know whether they're engaged or not."

"And I'll write to Mary. I don't approve of these movies."

When the show was over, Mrs. Smith turned to Mr. Jones at the entrance, where it was their custom to separate, one to go to his boarding house, the other to her little cottage on the edge of town.

"Wouldn't you have a cup of tea with me, Mr. Jones? It's cold and I'd like to show you some of Alfred's pictures when he was little."

"Why, yes, thank you, Mrs. Smith. I'll go out with you. He's a fine-looking young fellow."

"And your Mary is as pretty as a picture. Say, I know why they don't call her Mary Jones in the cast. People wouldn't remember it. She's 'Flora Kildare!'"

"That's right. I remember now. They're both awfully good, don't you think? I wouldn't mind her kissing people so much if she just wasn't engaged. If it was just your Alfred now it would be all right, wouldn't it?"

They reached the little house and Mrs. Smith unlocked the door. A letter lay on the hall carpet and she picked it up. "It's from Alfred," she cried. "Will you excuse me a minute while I run my eye over it and see what he says?"

"Yes, indeed. Go ahead." And then he heard a little cry. Just listen to this," she quavered. "Here's what he says. 'I've a little news, mother. I'm going to be married to a very sweet, dear girl called Mary Jones. Some people know her as Flora Kildare, for she's in the movies, and so, dear mother, am I. We work together and are very happy. When we're settled you must make up your mind to come here and live. Mary's father may come too.'"

"Why, I never thought of that," said Mrs. Jones dazedly.

"What a little bit of a world it is!" said Mrs. Smith.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

The Searchlight

SAVING A TOWN WITH ICE

The city of Scranton is considerably undermined by deep caverns from which coal has been excavated. Numerous cave-ins of buildings indicate the peril, and a number of plans have been suggested to remedy the condition, none of which has been considered practical. One now under consideration would consist in flooding all these caverns and freezing the water into solid ice. Experiments indicate that this can be done and that when the ice is once frozen solid by chemicals, it will be comparatively easy to overcome the melting which will grow less each day. The expense would be small as compared with any scheme for bracing up the caverns by timbers or steel which has formerly been offered.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE SEAMEN'S ACT

The safety requirements of the La Follette seamen's act, we assume, find no objection on the part of gentlemen in La Crosse who signed the petition for the law's repeal. A measure that goes no further than to license ship owners to drown not more than fifty per cent of passengers and crew for want of life-saving equipment, whereas before they were authorized to drown ninety per cent, can not have impressed these our fellow citizens as too large a concession to humanity.

No doubt they are the economic arguments that appealed to the La Crosse men. So frequent and emphatic has been the statement that the La Follette act will drive the American merchant marine from the sea, it is little wonder the thing has general credence. It is easy to get men to sign petitions, even if they know little about the subject. One wishes every man who signed that paper could have heard Andrew Furuseth's address Friday night.

Let us repeat a few of the facts, so clearly stated and firmly substantiated by Mr. Furuseth.

Instead of destroying the American marine, the La Follette act will build it up. There are many reasons, but one is outstanding.

Under the fugitive seamen act, repealed by the La Follette seamen's act, seamen were ship's property until returned to the port of sailing. Seamen's wages ranged from the low standards of Chinese ports, upward through the materially higher standards of European ports, to the high range of wages in American ports. Prior to the La Follette act, then, this state of things existed:

Side by side in Boston harbor lay two vessels, preparing for the sea. One was an Antwerp, the other an American vessel. They were competing in sea carrying traffic on exactly even terms excepting in the matter of wages. The crew of the Antwerp vessel were paid $25 per month, that of the American vessel were paid $40. Thus the American vessel's voyage would cost more than that of the Antwerp vessel by $15 per month for each man in the crew.

Now they would have been on even terms—these ships—if only the Antwerp captain had been compelled to pay American wages. But the American government said no. It ACTUALLY COMPELLED the Antwerp sailors to continue to work for $15 less per month, for the government would arrest and return to the Antwerp vessel every seaman leaving it in quest of work on an American ship at American wages. That was the law then. This government forced its ship owners to pay higher wages than were paid by the ship owners of competing nations.

Now, under the La Follette act, sailors no longer being slaves of their ships, wages are equalized. Every foreign ship entering an American port is deserted by its crew, which goes to ships willing to pay the American wage. In addition, the foreign ship owner who has lost his crew must pay the sailors' booking agencies from $40 to $60 per man to pick up a new crew, and also must meet the American wage scale.

The result already has been demonstrated. The sailor's wage scale at Antwerp—Antwerp is a mere example, it is so in all foreign ports—has risen approximately to the American standard. The ship owner over there doesn't want to lose a crew, pay an agency here for a new crew, and on top of that delay and expense pay the wage increase. He prefers to pay enough to keep the crew from leaving the ship.

But in Antwerp several ships collect crews and start for America, paying American wages. Then one seeks a crew for Singapore. The sailors demand American wages. The owner says, "But we are not going to America." The sailors say, "Very well, we'll wait for a ship that IS going to America."

The result is inevitable. The American port makes the international standard of wages. The best seamen gravitate to American ports. The American ship, for the first time, has an even break on wages in shipping competition. The sailor makes a nation's marine—the ships are merely his tools. The basis is laid for a powerful and prosperous American merchant marine—laid by the La Follette seamen's act, which the shipping interests condemn.

Then why do they condemn it—these ship owners of the American marine? Why, since it means success to them, do they want it repealed?

BECAUSE THE AMERICAN SHIPPING INTERESTS ARE ONLY NOMINALLY AMERICAN. BECAUSE THE BULK OF THEIR INVESTMENTS, UPWARDS OF THREE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS, IS INVESTED IN FOREIGN SHIPS. THEY OPPOSE IT BECAUSE THEY ARE FOREIGN OWNERS. MASQUERADING AS AMERICAN OWNERS; BECAUSE THEY WANT THE FOREIGN SHIP TO HAVE AN ADVANTAGE OVER THE AMERICAN SHIP.

Robert Dollar has been spokesman for the American shipping interests. He owns three coastwise traders of a total tonnage of only 3,000 tons, under American registry. They amount to just nothing. He owns four trans-Atlantic merchant ships. Until the war came they were under British registration. Fearing German raiders, Mr. Dollar entered two of them, which happened to be near American ports, in America. He planned to do the same with the other two, but a British fleet destroyed the German raiders off the Falkland Islands, so he left the latter two ships under English registry.

This, then, was Robert Dollar's claim to represent the American merchant marine. He owned four (four only) ocean-going merchant ships. They were registered at New Brunswick, Canada, were officered by British officers and manned by Chinese crews. Hear, oh hear the voice of the "American Merchant Marine"!

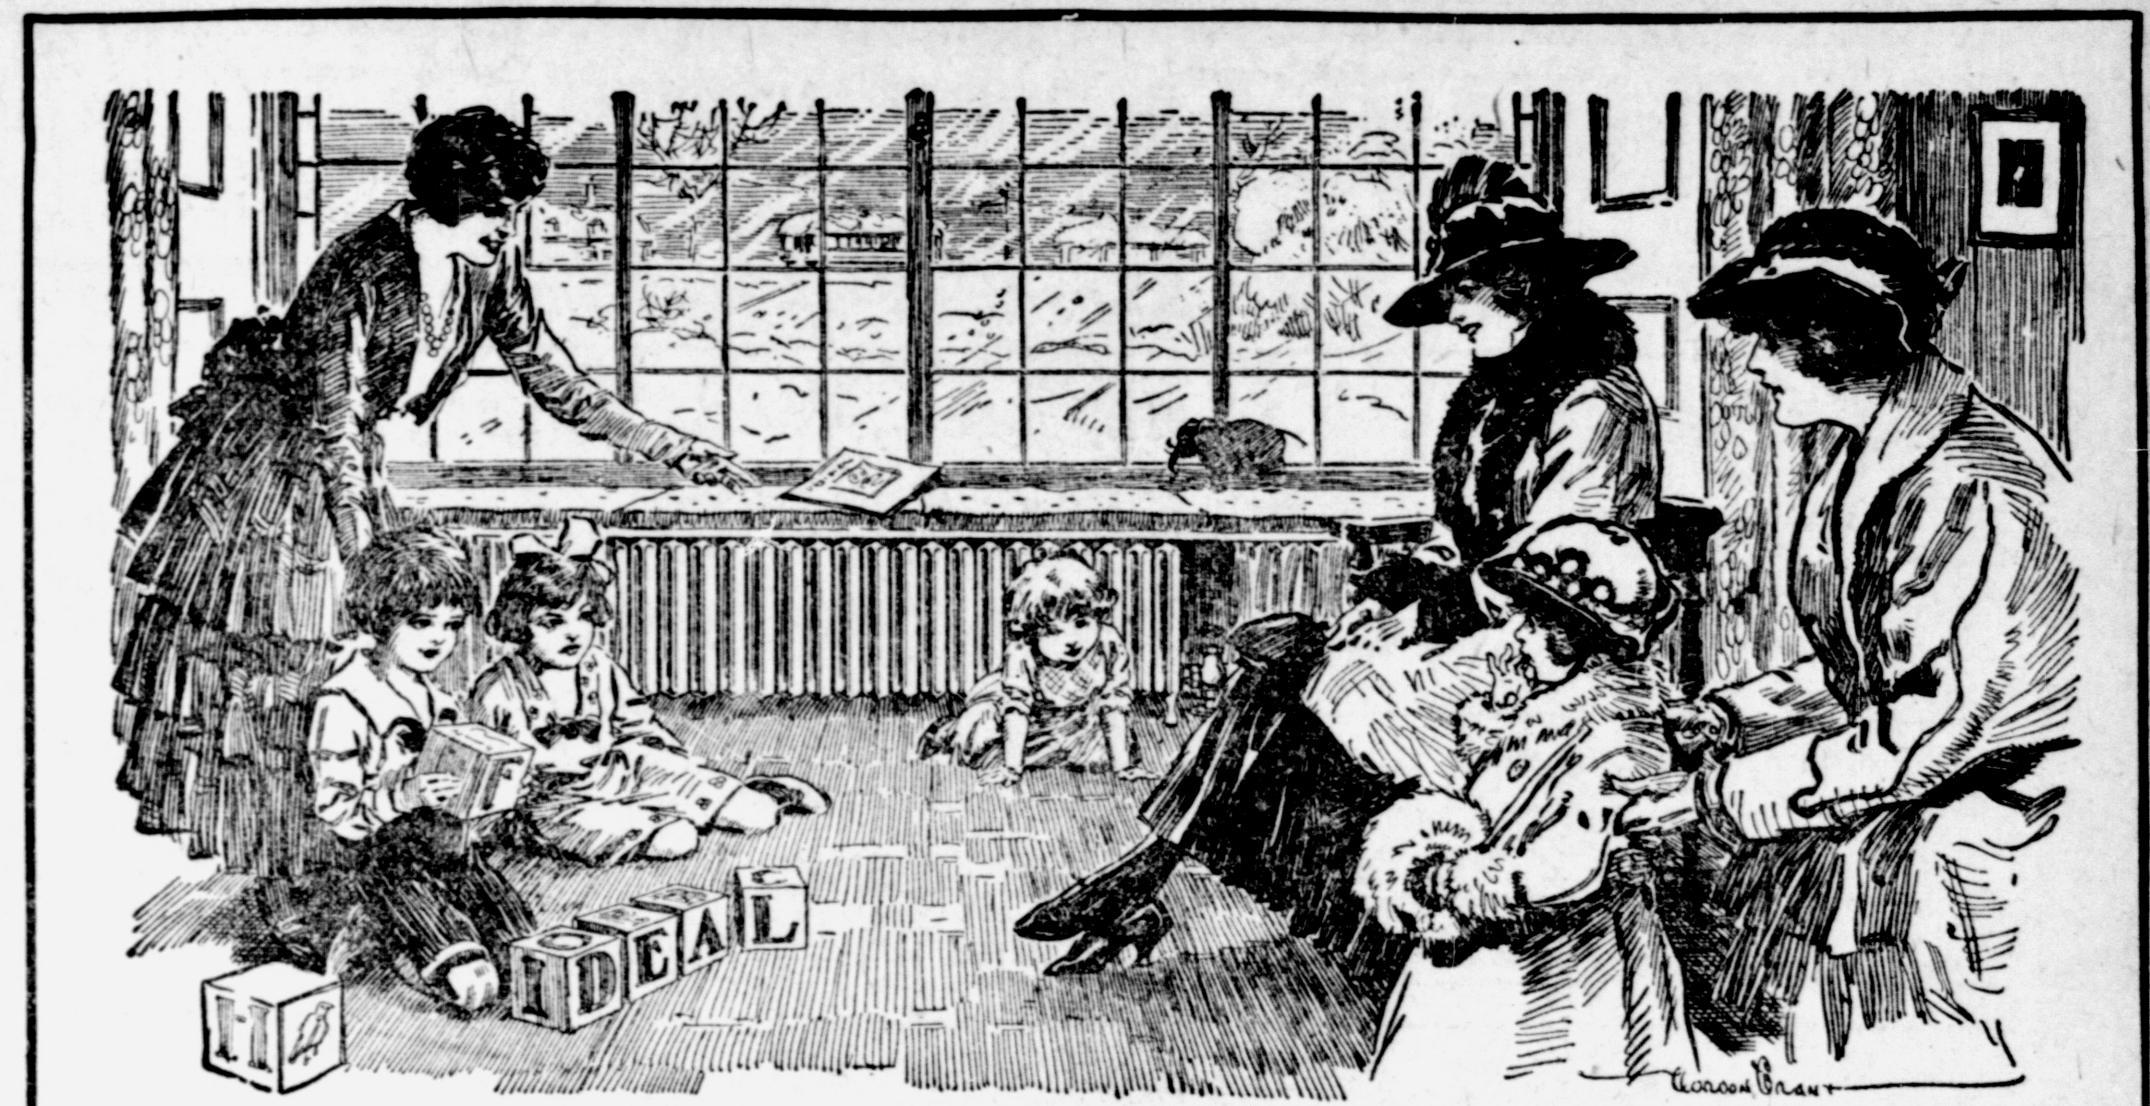

he shot and killed himself. The bill was a simple request that he pay the money. His body was found with the revolver in one hand and the letter in the other.

The two women faced each other a moment. Vera with her tear-wet handkerchief clutched in her hand, her eyes red and her nose sniveling, her mother with white face and dry, angry, hurt eyes. Slowly the older woman read the accusation of weakness in the eyes in which she had been used to see nothing but boundless love and admiration, and the change shocked her as Vera's words had not done. Vainly she strove to defend herself.

"Your father was an adulterer, Vera."

"Most men are, mother, and many women, at heart. There is something awfully, horribly, terribly fascinating in adultery to all of us. Father felt he was still our father. He came back, he wasn't what is called a 'bad' man. Your brother, Uncle Fred, did the same and you looked on his offense with leniency, mother. You continued to love him, you blamed the other woman in that case. We women should try to love our husbands as we do our brothers."

"My brother was not faithless to me," said her mother.

"That is why I call us egotists. We suffer, so we won't forgive. Another woman suffers, and we forgive the man."

"How could I, an outraged woman, go on living with your father day after day, when I had grown to hate him?"

"For our sakes," said Vera gently.

"Charlie's and mine. We were little children, we didn't know anything was wrong. You could have hidden it from us and left us our father. And, mother—" Vera paused. "It would have been as the Bible says, when we grew up and understood, we, your children, would have arisen and called you blessed."

"Vera, Vera, after all I have done for you."

"I know, mother. I know. You gave me everything but the most important, the most vital need in a girl's life, a father. You petted me and spoiled me and cuddled me, and, mother, I love you just as much, but—I should have had a father."

"When a woman has ceased to love a man—"

"That's logic for the strong, mother; you and I, and the great mass of people, aren't strong enough to live without cast-iron laws. If we get married with the grim fact staring us in the face that once married always married, we would put up with a lot more than we do now when we know we can be unmarried whenever we want and can soothe our rotten little consciences with the sophistry of the present day that it's a sin to live with a man you no longer love. That's a devil's phrase, mother, and a breeder of weakness, not strength."

"I can not stay longer and be insulted," returned her mother, going slowly toward the door.

"Mother," pleaded Vera, "I'm not insulting you. I do not mean it so at all. I'm insulting all of us modern women who get divorces and then talk twaddle about them. We ought to stick by the first man through thick and thin, through sickness and weakness and poverty. Only by being strong ourselves can we breed strong children, morally and mentally."

"I refuse to listen to you any longer," and Mrs. Morgan swept majestically away.

CHAPTER XIII

Sauce for the Goose

Nelly was restless and nervous. She wondered where Reuben was and what he was doing. The information that Miss Appleby was still too sick to appear made little or no impression on her. She had lost all interest in Great-aunt Appleby, in Ricky, in every one, but Reuben. What was there about him that held her, she asked herself, miserably, that gripped her as Ricky had never been able to? She was shaken as she had never been before. The mere sight of him satisfied her. When he was present, she tasted a happiness both rare and complete.

After breakfast, she wandered listlessly into the library, intending to read, but paused instead before the open window and tenderly kissed the peony he had given her. Then she blushed furiously and snatching the dainty flower from the front of her dress, crossed the room and tossed it into the paper basket, telling herself hotly not to be a fool. She, an Appleby, kissing the flower of an uneducated, common Jew, her aunt's fourth assistant gardener. The shame of it burned in her cheeks. She gazed down at the flower among the tumbled papers, and thought of Reuben, of his eyes, the way his thick black hair fell over his forehead, the way he showed his teeth when he laughed. She saw him again, approaching her over the lawn, the flower in his hand, in his eyes a look that made her thrill happily simply remembering it, and the tears leaped to her eyes. She stooped, all tenderness again and picked up the flower, gently smoothing its crumpled petals.

There was no reason why she should love him, but love was never yet reasonable for the sake of reason. She knew that she loved him truly and deeply, with a love she had never given to Ricky nor would ever give to another, a love, the like of which she had never dreamed existed. But Nelly was no fool. She knew herself better than anyone else knew her and she had no illusions on the subject as a less sweet-natured or vainer woman might have had. Miserably she asked herself if she would, could, let her love triumph over her up-bringing, and always doubted her strength to do so. Would the man be all sufficient, or would the worldly side of her cling to those petty things she cared for that made up her life. She recalled the stout placid Jewess, rocking stolidly back and forth, with her pleasant face, big and round and coarse, the little child in her arms so distinctly a comical caricature. She recalled the two little girls, staring at her over their mother's shoulder, jolly little girls, but so painfully "common." Could she endure them? For Reuben's sake could she overlook his family? After all, he was himself, and she would not be marrying the family. Why should the family count against him? The Rubenstein, too, were not vulgar. They were simple, kindly hearted, uneducated. Conventions and formalities did not appeal to them with their primitive, direct simplicity. They were clean and wholesome. So Nelly told herself with conviction, and yet the thought of presenting Mrs. Rubenstein to Great-aunt Appleby as a mother-in-law was unbearable. She pictured Mrs. Rubenstein in her mother's drawing-room and shuddered, though she told herself sternly that a drawing-room was not life. Van Tuyl hurried into the room.

"Hullo, Nell, coming with me?" "Where?" asked Nelly, busy rearranging the peony in the front of her frock.

"The Voice of the People is most enthusiastic about Husband's Day," explained Van Tuyl, rummaging in the desk for his note-book. "I want to get the opinion of various people on it, so I am going to begin with my friend, Mrs. Hogan."

"Mrs. Hogan?" gasped Nelly.

The New Method

Backache of any kind is often caused by kidney disorder, which means that the kidneys are not working properly. Poisonous matter and uric acid accumulate within the body in great abundance, over-working the sick kidneys, hence the congestion of blood causes backache in the same manner as a similar congestion in the head causes headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish, irritable, have spots appearing before the eyes, bags under the lids, and lack ambition to do things.

The latest and most effective means of overcoming this trouble, is to eat sparingly of meat, drink plenty of water between meals and take a single anuric tablet before each meal for a while.

Simply ask your favorite druggist for anuric if you aren't feeling up to the standard. If you have lumbago, rheumatism, dropsy, begin immediately with this novel treatment

MENTALLY FEEBLE OCCUPY MINDS OF SHEBOYGAN MEET

State Conference of Charities and Correction Concentrates Upon Need of Improvement

PSYCHOLOGIST IS URGED
Place to Combat Feeble-mindedness Is in the Schools Statement of the Speakers

The whole conference of state charities and correction at Shebo-gan this year set a new and high standard. The program was consistently planned to concentrate on the problem of feeble-mindedness as a part of a state-wide campaign to arouse the public to the seriousness of the menace and thus get the state's backing for proposed legislation to ameliorate the present deplorable conditions. The most notable feature of the conference was its constantly recurring emphasis upon the importance of a practical program for action.

Schools the Battleground
All the speakers from Mrs. C. P.
Cary, of Madison, who spoke Wednesday morning on the "Feeble-Mindedness in the Schools," straight through to Dr. Alexander Johnson, the expert on feeble-mindedness, who spoke on Thursday night on "Some State Programs for the Care of the Feeble-Minded" agree as with one voice that the strategic place to attack the whole problem of feeble-mindedness is in the public schools.

Professor Robert H. Gault, editor of the Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology, who spoke Thursday morning on the "Feeble-minded woman and Hygiene," spoke especially of the tremendous cost of feeble-mindedness to the community. Professor Gault suggested as the most efficient plan for weeding out the feeble-minded a competent psychologist connected with every public school system to make repeated examination of all backward or exceptional children, which, supplemented by the continuous observation of competent teachers would prove a sure method of singling out the 183,000 feeble-minded children, who, according to the best estimates, are now in the public schools of the United States, many of them unrecognized and going forth into social communities to complicate our social problems and fill up our prisons, alms houses, and houses of prostitution.

Note of Optimism
Dr. Johnson, the main speaker of the conference—who is to be in La Crosse for a special lecture October 30—brought a decided note of optimism to the day's discussions by reminding the conference all that is known of the nature of feeble-mindedness and its close relationship to crime, pauperism and immorality has been learned within the last ten years, and that while Wisconsin's problem seems almost overwhelming in its magnitude, there are nevertheless only a few states in the Union that are ahead of Wisconsin in their attempts to solve the problem.

The institution for the care of the feeble-minded at Chippewa Falls has a capacity of 1,370 and has for years been crowded even beyond capacity —often having to discharge patients who are sadly in need of permanent care—in order to make room for others whose need is more desperately pressing.

Many in La Crosse
The Associated Charities of La Crosse had thirteen families last year in which there was feeble-mindedness, according to statements of Miss Nadia Thomas, which was more than ten per cent of all the families under its care. Only two of these cases which were the most urgent could be admitted at Chippewa Falls. Two others have been on the waiting list for months, with many more ready to take their places on the waiting list just as soon as these are admitted. When it is remembered that every other town and city in the state tells the same story and when it is further realized that the long-sought institution at Union Grove, which has been promised to the state for the last five years and for which ground was broken only last August, cannot be entirely finished for at least twenty years, according to the statement of the state engineering department, one cannot fail to wonder that the feeble-minded population continues to multiply at a prodigious rate. The state convention and local charities are pleading for action.

bride in Young Lochinvar style. Max Swain is also on the majestic bill, which closes Monday night, in a Keystone comedy with a decided punch.

Although I am only

give up the stage
where I was playing with my husband.

I had bearing down pains, my health failed me, and I could not work on the stage, and wasn't able to tend my baby or even get around myself. I was always downhearted and discontented with the world, and only lived for the sake of my little girl. The doctor said to move to some quiet little town away from the noisy city, and I might be able to live and feel well, so I went to Day-so sick I could not walk around, and my husband kept house and I stayed in bed.

One day in January I read your adver-

"CIVILIZATION'S" REALISM ALMOST BEYOND BELIEF

Actual Flesh-and-blood Prologue Sets the Audience Into Mood for Film

ORCHESTRA MAKES BIG HIT

Effects Throughout the Picture Greatly Enhance Impression of Powerful Story

What Griffith did in the reproduction of the warfare of fifty years ago, through "The Birth of a Nation," Ince has done for modern warfare through "Civilization." The latter picture is as great, as vivid as the former, and with a greater wealth of detail and a higher mastery of the art of filming. Perhaps Ince's achievement is the greater, for without the use of historical characters he has created personalities as real and sensitive as strong as those which, built around America's household heroes, drew millions to the bugle call of the white-clad clans. Coming out of the theater after seeing "Civilization," one feels that he has passed through a subterranean passage from another world, and the two hours of entertainment is transformed into months of personal experience. The music, both vocal and orchestral, is excellent, and is wonderfully woven into the sensations that play through the world's greatest film spectacle. The shocking unrealities of "The Battle Cry of Peace," and that film's detached and unconvincing incidents, failed to deliver the message found in the vastness and inevitableness of movement in which Ince actually shows, not segments of armies, but actual nations surging in massive conflict, with land and sky and the surface of the depths of the sea involved.
"Civilization" will live in history as one of the achievements of "the movies."—Editor.

Incomparable with any spectacle ever attempted on stage or screen, unbelievably realistic in its portrayal of actual warfare of today, flaunting the world's boast of a higher progress in the face of humanity, and picturing the utter devastation of an entire nation, "Civilization," the Thomas H. Ince motion picture preachment in universal peace is a marvel of ingenuity.

Prologue is Play
Two large audiences witnessing the opening engagements at the La Crosse theater on Sunday sat literally spellbound as C. Gardner Sullivan's story unfolded itself, while the peaceful kingdom of Wredpyre, the mythical country with which "Civilization" deals, was converted by a bloodthirsty king in a day into a land seared with death and destruction.
The truly gigantic production is introduced with a short, but powerful prologue acted by flesh-and-blood players. During the exhibition of the prologue and picture, a symphony orchestra, directed by Frank Pallma, furnishes a wonderful accompaniment.
The battle effects, among which is the largest drum ever employed greatly enhances the value of the story. One startling feature of the production is the strict attention the producer has paid to the smallest details. They are more noticeable than in any large picture ever seen in La Crosse, and make "Civilization" stand out as one film among thousands. That Mr. Ince spent an entire year in filming his masterpiece is not difficult to realize. Separate scenes number in the hundreds, and many of these lasting but a few brief seconds, were given six exposures, and took days in the making.

One of the most successful theatrical engagements of the season is predicted for "Civilization" for the reason that it holds for the entertainment loving public a spectacle never seen before, and is an epoch in the art of the cinematograph—a mark to which all others must strive. Advance seat sales for the picture, which remains in La Crosse Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, promise large audiences.

Sixty-two in Company
Under the management of J. E.
Rosen, a company of sixty-two people engage in the presenting of "Civilization." Not the least striking feature is the introduction of a large chorus of women's voices in appropriate portions of the picture.

The prologue opens with a startling effect of early morning in a peaceful village of the empire of Wredpyre. A cock is perched on a fence rail. Rabbits nibble the grass.
A fisherboy appears. He is followed by the early morning milkman, his cart drawn by a team of dogs. Lovers snatch a kiss as they go to their work. As the sun comes up more people gather. Their faces beam with happiness.

War
Without warning the sunshine is blurred out. A cannon booms in the distance; a shell bursts at the feet of the villagers. War has begun!
Some inkling of what is to follow in the picture is given by the actors.
Actual warfare is not shown, but the effect is much stronger than the reality. Their clothing torn in shreds, written on their countenances, soldiers back away from the enemy in their death agonies and fall on the stage.

As quickly as the picture was introduced the curtain is lowered, and the projection of "Civilization" is begun.
The musical score and lyrics, written by Victor L. Schertzinger, fit in perfectly. As the story is told, the score changes time and time again.
Deep bass instruments, employed in the war scenes, give way to the sweet tones of the flute and other reed instruments in the less gripping scenes.

In the role of the king of Wredpyre, Herschel Mayall fits the character well. The well known Howard Hickman, who first became famous through his engagements with Sarah Bernhardt, plays the part of Ferdinand, the central character in the story of "Civilization." Enid Markey, a favorite of Triangle productions, is Count Ferdinand's sweetheart, and one of the leaders of "Mothers of the World Society." The latter is one of the principle themes of the tale.

King Orders War
The king of Wredpyre is given the right by parliament to prevent or bring about war with a neighboring nation. Egotistical with power, the monarch orders his army to the front.
In spite of the fact that the impending war is without cause, the people of Wredpyre are in heart with the king. In fact they clamor for war.
The first big scenes of the film are introduced with thousands of people standing outside the monarch's capital, pleading for conquest. A modern army is seen leaving for battle. In this, details are followed closely. One particularly striking view is that of the army forming the line of battle at night. The hordes of soldiers are seen as dots against an almost black horizon.

More words are bare in describing the battle that follows. It is by no means an exaggeration of warfare, although terrible in the extreme. By thousands men go to their deaths.
The individual acting is tremendous,
and the mass effects hold one entranced. The conflict passes on the screen in long scenes and quick flashes, although there is no endeavor to use any of the cinema effects employed in former pictures treating the subject. In fact, "Civilization" is thoroughly original at every turn.

Battles at Sea
Battles on the sea follow. Army aeroplanes wreck the capital building, erected by Ince at a cost of $50, 000. One sees a transatlantic liner go to its doom. There is no pseudo sinking of the big ship, but close-up views show that it actually sinks below the level of the water, torpedodoed. Passengers on the promenade decks are shaken from their footing as the death-dealing shell strikes.
Count Ferdinand is the inventor of a wonderful submarine with which the king of Wredpyre hopes to bring about victory. The count is ordered to the command of a fleet of the sub-mersibles. Prior to his leaving the capital he meets his sweetheart and is shown by her secret meeting of the "Mothers of the World." She pleads with the count against the carrying out of his plans. He is ordered to sink a passenger steamer. He falters from the deed and finally decided against it. In the interim a picture of what it would mean is summoned up before him. Here

Ince injects the sinking of the liner.
The crew of the count's submersible mutinies. He floods the craft and is swept into the sea. His body is found and taken to the king's palace. The king's physicians work over the count until he is restored to life.

The Savior Appears.
When Count Ferdinand gives up his life, Christ appears to him. The character is portrayed in a delicate manner by George Fisher. The Chris-tus tells Count Ferdinand that he will return to earth in the count's clove to endeavor to re-teach universal love. Upon returning to life the count refuses to engage in war, and instead enrolls himself in the cause of peace.
He is stoned, thrown into prison, condemned to die, and finally life passed from him in the prison cell.
When the king of Wredpyre learns of the death of the count he visits the dead man. He is startled to see a vision of Christ appear.

Christ leads the king through his war-swept domain. He shows him what war is. The king is shown a book in which is written the names of men who love humanity. The king asks if his name can be written in the book. The vision of Christ disappears and the king returns to his home to issue the peace command.

Five thousand women, members of the "Mothers of the World society," kneel in a pouring rain at the steps of the capital. This scene has been called the most stupendous ever attempted before the camera.

FIFTEEN DEAD IN MINE BLAST

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 23.—The death list resulting from a gas explosion in the Marvel mine, thirty-five miles south of Birmingham will contain fifteen and possibly twenty names, it became known Monday when the twelfth body was brought out by rescuers.

They reported at least three more bodies to be recovered and there are five other men unaccounted for.

Charges against Roy Houser, arrested upon the complaint of Ernest Gilmeister, proprietor of the Onalaska Line House, who charged Houser with the theft of a chicken from his hen-roost, were dropped by Mr. Gilmeister on Monday.

THE MIGHTY SHIELD AND BUCKLER

In mediaeval days when armed foes met in belligerent strife, victory was the reward of the best equipped, accoutred and PROTECTED. PROTECTION against theslinging arrows and javelins of the enemy was the deciding element between victory and defeat. The chief element that decides between good and bad health is PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE. We are all prone to be more or less lacking in the care of our health, and all too often overlook the bounds of resistance against disease, and find ourselves suddenly "checked up" and facing a "spell of sickness" that proper precautions might have entirely prevented. WHAT BLOOD PURIFIER, that builds the new tissue, purifies and revitalizes the blood. If you are afflicted with one of the "spells of sickness" on BLOOD AND SKIN DISEASES, or write to our MEDICAL ADVISORY DEPARTMENT for free advice.

MURDOCK OUT FOR WILSON BUT WHITE STICKS BY HUGHES

TOPEKA, Kas., Oct. 23.—William Allen White, former progressive, author, and editor of the Emporia (Kansas) Gazette, was still in the republican camp on Monday despite Victor Murdock's announcement for Woodrow Wilson.

"The Gazette is a republican paper and we are running Hughes' name under the sub-head on the editorial page," White said over the long distance telephone.

The Emporia editor knew nothing of Murdock's announcement for Wilson until told of it by a representative of the United Press. He refused to comment on the announcement, except to say: "It is Murdock's own business."

Murdock, of the Wichita Eagle, announced Saturday he would support Wilson for president and Arthur Capper, a republican, for governor of Kansas, in the coming election.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, soured bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

Will Never Be Without This Simple Laxative

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Relieved Her Baby When Nothing Else Would.

Little Max Pendergrast is now four years old, and a fine healthy boy. When but a tiny baby, in fact almost from birth, he suffered a great deal from constipation. His mother, Mrs. Carl W. Pendergrast, Red Key, Ind., heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, obtained a bottle of it from the drug store, and with it was able to quickly correct this condition.

Mrs. Pendergrast says Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has saved them from calling the doctor many times, and that she will never be without a bottle of it in the house to use when needed. She found it equally effective as a laxative for herself and other members of the family.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, pleasant to the taste, mild in action and positive in effect. It does not gripe or strain, and contains no opiate or narcotic drug. It is the ideal family laxative, mild and pleasant for baby, yet acting quickly on the strongest constitution.

NEW Bread Prices

Every Housewife knows that flour and all other materials used in the making of bread have greatly advanced in price and understands that the baker has no alternative but to adjust his price for bread.

Therefore beginning Tuesday, Oct. 24, our pound size T-Zer, Irish, Graham and Rye Bread will retail at seven cents the loaf and the large size Mothers, Bismarck Rye and Light Rye will retail at 12 cents per loaf.

While the war prices we are paying for flour, sugar, milk, shortening and other bread-making materials, force us to this step, we wish it understood with the increase in price added weight will be given. This price and weight adjustment which the tremendous cost of raw materials compel us to make will not be permitted to interfere with the high standard of quality of our bread.

Boy on Bicycle Knocks Man Down And Breaks Leg

Chick Monsor, 16, whirled around the corner of Second and State streets on his bicycle. Bartis Egan, of Houston, Minn., was coming around the corner from the other direction. They came together with a crash which threw them both to the sidewalk.

Chick got up, but Mr. Egan lay groaning. His left leg was broken.

"Say," said Chick, according to the police, "Ain't that too bad! Now you wait here and I'll go telephone for a doctor."

Exit Chick, pedaling madly—and although that was at nine o'clock Sunday morning, Chick didn't re-appear on the scene until afternoon on Monday, when policemen rounded him up and commanded him to "see the chief." He was to drop into the station and explain why he had been riding on the sidewalk.

Egan is in a hospital.

The increase is as high as fifty per cent in some instances.

HYPHEN QUESTION BOBS UP AGAIN IN THE CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—With candidates and their supporters swinging into the election home stretch, the hyphen issue popped up Monday with a renewed vigor. Democratic charges against Hughes as to an alleged deal with hyphenates were denied by the republican candidate.

Hughes rested at a final campaign dash, while Colonel Roosevelt, in the west, continued his effort to swing votes to Hughes, and Wilson at Shadow Lawn, prepared for a ringing Wilson day speech this week.

At the home stretch developments rounded thus: Democrats claimed Hughes dealt with the racial organization, the American Independence conference.

A second statement from the democratic national committee, quoting a "plank" adopted by the American Independence conference following an "agreement" reached with Charles E. Hughes, followed by a challenge from Republican National Chairman Willcox for the democrats to produce such an agreement, kept the political pot boiling here with the hyphen issue.

Sign and acknowledge before the notary the affidavit printed on the envelope in which the ballot was mailed to you. Place the ballot in the envelope, seal it, and send it by registered mail to the town or city clerk where you are entitled to vote.

ures on majorities, but in the form of a map makes the following predictions:
Wilson—All of the old "solid south."
Hughes—Pacific states, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Kansas, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania and New England solid.

Doubtful—Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Montana, Nebraska, Missouri, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, New York, New Jersey and West Virginia.
"Examiner's" Figures
The "Examiner," excepting in its reference to "surprises" in republican states, draws no conclusions from its canvass, but its poll shows from following:

Wilson leading—Michigan, Iowa, Kentucky, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New York.
Hughes leading—Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Kansas, Montana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, California.
It Will Take the Count
Excepting in Ohio and Delaware, where the Wilson lead is very large, the race as indicated by the postcard returns is at no place decisive. The summaries of all three papers give no basis for estimates sufficiently definite to found conclusions. From them people will form their own combinations, usually letting the wish guide the thought. Perhaps the one reasonable deduction possible is that the election promises to be very close, and that results will remain in extreme doubt until the votes are counted.

which 50,000,000 are so shrunken and blighted by heat and rust as to be unmillable, and 75,000,000 bushels comprise a normal "carry-over" for seed. In view of the fact that every individual in the country consumes for food approximately five bushels of wheat in the form of flour every year, figures prove that this greatest wheat producing country in the world did not raise enough wheat to feed its own inhabitants and seed its own fields during the course of the last twelve months.

Added to these unusual conditions is the fact that the world's production was 344,000,000 bushels short. Consequently, Europe scrambles for our wheat and even exceedingly high prices cannot keep it at home.

La Crosse, all through the rise in prices, however, paid at least fifty cents less on the barrel than did Minneapolis people in their own town, due to the local mill's manipulation of flour quotations in this vicinity, according to A. L. Goetzmann of the Listman plant.

The United States bureau of agriculture has deemed the statistics on the matter of sufficient importance to prepare an elaborate bulletin which is mailed to the farmers showing the energy which any unit of money will buy when invested in twelve different articles of common consumption. In this it was shown that flour at four cents per pound will go as far as twenty-five cents per pound.

Least Water Content
They went on to show that beef contains sixty per cent of water, potatoes contain seventy-five per cent of water and milk eighty to ninety per cent while flour contains but thirteen and one-half per cent.

Again, the bureau points out, where the average family pays about fifty dollars per year on gas bills, he average family of five consumes five barrels of flour which at $10.00 per barrel equals exactly the cost of gas required for cooking.

Flour is the cry of all the stricken countries of Europe who consumes twice as much of the "old standby" as do the Americans. The United States Department of agriculture believes the United States citizens in these times of "King Hicostalvin" should profit by the bill of fare adopted abroad where flour and wheat in spite of its high price is relatively the cheapest article man can buy in the purchase of food values.

As William C. Edgar says in his "Graham and Wheat," "Flour is bread and bread is food, the chief of all foods, man's constant mainstay and support from time immemorial, the primary object in his struggle for existence. Food for the stomach takes precedence of man's demands upon the world, and bread has been the cry of the needy since history's beginning."

DURUM WHEAT SELLS FOR $2.00 IN MINNEAPOLIS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 23.—Durum wheat sold for $2 a bushel in the local pit Monday. Flour was up 20 cents, selling for $9.60 a barrel.

FURUSETH'S LOST SISTER FOUND BY TRIBUNE SUNDAY ON FARM

was ended. The resemblance to her brother was striking.

"Is this my brother?" asked Mrs. Dittenger eagerly, turning to the older of the two visitors as the object of the call was announced. Her face fell as she was set right.

"Is my brother in La Crosse?" was her next question, and her eyes glistened as the reporter told her that her brother had been in La Crosse—had been in Holmen only the day before, but had left without being able to find her.

She Never Saw Him
"That's too bad, too bad," she said regretfully. "I never saw him in all my life. And now maybe I won't ever see him. He's been to see my sister in North Dakota a couple of times, but I haven't heard from him for nearly eight years. I wondered why he didn't write, but you say he lost my address and didn't know my name since I married again. Yes, that's it. Isn't it too bad!"

Mrs. Dittenger received her callers in a bare little room, half living-room, half bed-room. A spotless kitchen was glimpsed through the door-way—a big, beamed room which at one time had been the only room of the farm-house. On the outside it showed built of squared logs, chinked with plaster and whitewashed. Three little girls, the youngest about three years old, were playing about the house—the youngest of Mrs. Dittenger's family of seven, of whom six are now living. Her only son, a boy of fourteen, was accidentally killed in a hunting accident some years ago.

Mrs. Dittenger was glad to talk about herself and her famous brother. She said she had never seen him, but she was full of anecdotes about his youth, gathered from her mother. She brought out family pictures to show the callers—her wedding picture, taken in La Crosse two years after she came over from "the old country," a family group of her father and mother with "the baby"—Mrs. Dittenger—in which a marked resemblance was noticeable between the mother and her noted son, and others of similar kind.

Went to Sea at Fifteen
"I'm 47 now," Mrs. Dittenger said. "Andrew left home before I was born—I'm the baby of the family," with a deprecating smile as she smoothed her apron over her lap. "My mother told Andrew when he said he was going to sea that she would never see him again. And that's the way it was. When Andrew came back again mother was dead. He didn't come back for nearly twenty years, and I had grown up and come to America. Andrew went to sea at fifteen—he must be over sixty now."

Furuseth, Mrs. Dittenger said, is the name of the family farm in Romedal, Hedemarken, near Christiania. It is not a sea-port—in fact, it is a rail journey of some length from Romedal to Christiania, and his sister apparently spoke a family puzzle when she wondered "how Andrew ever got it in his head to be a sailor." "Andrew was the only seaman of his generation," Mrs. Dittenger said, "although of course there were sailors in the family 'away back.'"

He's Andrew Anderson
According to the Norwegian custom of nomenclature, Mrs. Dittenger said, her famous brother's name would be Andrew Anderson, for her father was Anders, of Furuseth. She herself, she said, was known as Gline Anderson when she first came to La Crosse county twenty-four years ago, and married Peter Hagen of Lewis Valley. Mr. Hagen is now dead these eight years. She was greatly interested to know if her fifteen-year-old daughter, Miss Olga Hagen, had heard her uncle lecture in La Crosse. Miss Olga is a student of the R. U.

"Tell Andrew to come and see me if he can," was Mrs. Dittenger's parting word. "Tell him if he can't come to be sure and write, and I'll surely answer him."

Accordingly, the message was given to Mr. Furuseth Sunday evening by The Tribune, when he was located by long distance telephone at the home of C. A. Leicht, New Lisbon.

SUPERIOR, WITH REGULARS OUT, IS EASY FOR NORMALS

Local Pedagogues Trample on Northerners to Tune of 89 to 0 Score

BACKFIELD WORK GOOD

Dean Ably Fills the Shoes of Crippled Grausnick; Levant and Moore Lead the Visitors

Represented by one of the strongest teams in its history, La Crosse normal swamped the Superior teachers with the long end of an 89 to 0 score Saturday. The field was much better than on Friday for the high school-Chippewa Falls game and plays were not spoiled by many slips. Absence of three regulars is blamed by Superior for the poor showing.

"Shorty" Dean played a snappy game in the place of Grausnick, who is confined to St. Francis hospital with a broken ankle, making two touchdowns, one by a forty-eight yard run with an intercepted pass.

Superior had good men in Levant, fullback, and Captain Moore, left tackle. The big fullback could pierce the line for his share of the down when called upon but he could not play the game alone. In fact, the visitors made first down but once, on a 20 yard forward pass to Campbell. Captain Moore was the mainstay of the line. Often he would break through and tackle Grounds and Dean for a loss.

Although La Crosse had a good rushing attack it was woefully weak at kicking goals, only five out of fourteen being successful.

The Roellig to Kulcynski passes, which were famous when the two played on the high school eleven, worked to perfection. Benjamin hit the line with his usual speed and was a terror at end on defense. Shorty Grounds played the game of his life at half back, running around or over everybody in his path. Coach Keeler's line showed its good training by holding the visitors to one first down.

After La Crosse had carried the ball down the field and Roellig had gone over for the first touchdown, Superior came back strong and threatened to score. Campbell made 20 yards on a forward pass and Levant made several small gains. Then another pass was tried but Dean was

Pure Water Applied In Dedication Saturday Of Normal Athletic Field

President Fassett A. Cotton of the normal school had finished speaking. Football players of La Crosse and Superior normal sat in their blankets in front of the crowds in the bleachers. Then Miss Georgia Pease of La Crosse stepped forward, and, breaking a bottle of pure water, christened the field Normal Athletic Field.

Normal Regents W. F. Wolfe, of La Crosse and Hamilton of White-water, who had planned on speaking at the ceremonies were unable to attend and President Cotton spoke instead. Co-ordination of mental and physical training, which, he said, is exemplified in the work of the day, should be the purpose of education.

under it and carried it to safety between the goal post after a 48 yard run. Four touchdowns were made in this quarter and four more in the second.

The second quarter was featured by a great run of 46 yards by Kulcynski for a touchdown. Superior had been held for downs on the forty yard line and when line plunges failed Roellig shot the ball to Kulcynski at end and Louie went over.

The first touchdown in the second half was made in one minute. The running back of the ball from Superior's kickoff placed it on the northerner's 42 yard line and from there "Soup" Roellig skirted the end and ran through a broken field to the goal with the pigskin tucked safely in his arm. Six touchdowns were made in this half, four in the third and two in the last quarter.

WISCONSIN WINS DESPITE FIERY INDIAN ASSAULT

Haskell Redskins Gain More Ground Than Badgers But Lack the Punch to Score

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 23.—The Haskell Indians, with a speedy open attack kept the Badgers on the defense most of the time in Saturday's contest at Camp Randall, but Wisconsin was able to score two touchdowns and win, 13 to 0. The fleet Indians gained around the Badgers' ends, and it was with difficulty that Wisconsin kept them from scoring. Eber Simpson, star Badger half back, was injured and may miss the game with Chicago.

Although the Indians gained more ground than Wisconsin, they lacked the drive to score when within striking distance. Most of their gains were made on wide end runs with either Campbell or L. Evans, half backs, carrying the ball. They were helpless, however, in bucking the strong Wisconsin line, which proved its strength.

Pass Brings First. A long forward pass, Simpson to Meyers, resulted in Wisconsin's first touchdown soon after the opening of the second period. Wisconsin received the ball on its thirty-three yard line on a punt. Short gains through the visitors' line and a forward pass, Simpson to Taylor, worked the oval to the Indians' twenty-eight yard line. Then Simpson made a long pass to Meyers from a punt formation, and Meyers raced eight yards over the goal for a touchdown.

The Indians held the Badgers even for the remainder of the second period and throughout the entire third quarter. In the last period both teams resorted to the open game with frequent end runs, forward passes and punting. After seasawing back and forth from Wisconsin to Indian territory the ball finally came to rest in the center of the field. With a series of successful end runs and line plunging Wisconsin planted it on Haskell's one-yard line, and on the next play Kreuz went through center for the touchdown.

Twice the visitors tried to score by a place kick, but on each attempt the ball went wide by a few feet.

The lineup: Wisconsin—Meyers, captain, lb; Koch, lt; Hancock, lg; Carpenter, c; Gray, rg; Filtner, rt; Kelley, re; Taylor, qb; Olsen, lb; Simpson, rb; Berg, fb.

Haskell Indians—Benton, re; Williams, captain, rt; Prastler, rg; Kings, c; Timothy, lg; Fire, lt; Evans, lb; Clements, qb; Campbell, rfb; Hamilton, lb; Black, fb.

W. B. U. ATHLETES ARE CHAMPIONS OF LOCAL BALL LOTS

Eagles Defeated 3 to 0 in Final Game of Deciding Series for the City Title

The W. B. U. Athletes are undisputed champions of La Crosse. They won the deciding game Sunday from the Eagles, 3 to 0, in the best game played in the final series. The Eagles, erratic in the first two games, steadied, but were unable to connect with Moppy Anderson's shoots, Moppy allowing but three scattered hits.

Shotten, who led the Eagles to victory a week ago, again drew mound duty, but was touched for ten hits, including a triple by Tanke and a double by Anderson.

The Athletes scored first in the fourth on Tanke's triple, followed by a single by Chapman. Davis also singled, but Chapman was caught at the plate. Anderson scored in the fifth on a hard drive by Immel, and the trick was repeated in the ninth when Moppy walked and came in on a rap by Immel.

FATIMA

A Sensible Cigarette

More men are now smoking SENSIBLY—

MEN ARE willing to think a little more carefully today even about the cigarette they choose.

That is good sense. For if an otherwise good cigarette is unfortunate in its blend—if it disturbs after continued smoking—it is not worth while.

The one reason why Fatimas appeal strongly to so many thinking men is that they do not disturb. Fatimas are truly comfortable—comfortable to throat as well as tongue. And they always leave a man feeling fine and "fit" even after a long-smoking day.

THE HASKIN LETTER

The Growing West

Range Wars Are Forgotten and Rival Elements Now Make Common Cause Against Wild Beasts.

III—The Last Range War
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 23.
THE RANGE wars of the past are almost forgotten. There is only one range war left. Struggles between different cattle ranches, between cattlemen and sheep men, between stock men and homesteaders, that were waged for undisputed possession of grazing land are as much out of date as feuds on Broadway. A man who owns stock in the west today has only one enemy to fight for sovereignty within his fences. That enemy is the predatory wild animal—the wolf, the lion and the coyote. And this last enemy is keeping up his end of the struggle in right successful fashion, in spite of traps and trappers, hunters, poison and bounties.

Predatory animals are not able to put any appreciable check on the development of the stock industry, but they can and do put a serious dent in the profits now and again. Here in New Mexico, for instance, at a recent meeting of the stockmen's association, the wild animal problem came in for more discussion than any other question. At that, the members were unable to agree on any method for dealing with wild animals better than the present one, which is admittedly inadequate.

The most destructive animal from the cattleman's point of view is the wolf. This is quite a different animal from his little cousin, the coyote, though the coyote is sometimes called a wolf in the east. The superior regard in which the true wolf is held by the cattleman is shown by the fact that his head is worth just seven times as much in bounty money as the head of a coyote.

A full grown wolf with a good digestion will eat three steers a month. He can be counted on to see that he gets full rations as long as there is beef on the hoof to be found on the range. Three steers a month, or forty head a year—a wolf will generally make away with a few extras when he is feeling unusually energetic—represent an annual board bill of $1,200 per capita for an average wolf. The wolf population of New Mexico is estimated to be in the neighborhood of five hundred individuals. Roughly speaking, therefore, they will destroy $600,000 worth of cattle in a year in this state alone.

The mountain lion ranks with the wolf as an expensive though uninvited guest at the stockman's table. The southwest is full of lion stories for the regalement of the tenderfoot, in which the big cat figures as a treacherous and dangerous man eater. The lion tribe have a habit of following a traveler through timbered country when they are very hungry, sometimes for days, and this is probably the grain of truth at the bottom of most of these stories. As a matter of fact the mountain lion is not dangerous where humanity is concerned. It is practically impossible to find an authenticated instance of a lion attacking a man without extreme provocation. There is no shadow of doubt, however, that the lions kill large numbers every year.

Colt is the fountain lion's favorite diet. He is not fond of beef, like the wolf, though he is ready enough to eat it on occasion; but he seems to have a sweet tooth that the sweetish flesh of a colt appeals to immensely. So destructive are these great felines among horses that it is impossible to breed and raise range horses in a lion country. There are plenty of instances where such attempts to raise horses have been put out of business by the lions, and every stockman suffers a greater or smaller annual loss among his saddle stock, depending on the number of lions in his neighborhood.

The coyotes are generally despised throughout the west, and they rarely attack large animals like steers. They are exceedingly destructive among sheep, however, and a careless herder can lose a dozen muttons in a night from these crafty little yellow wolves. It is hardly possible to estimate the damage done by coyotes with accuracy, because when carefully guarded against they will turn and live on rabbits and prairie dogs until they get a chance to get among the sheep again. A wolf, however, will get in his work among the cattle with a regularity far from praiseworthy. The fact that cattle range without a herder has a great deal to do with this.

The wolves, the lions, and the coyotes are the most destructive predatory animals on the range. Wild cats destroy some sheep every year, and the black bear is not above eating mutton when sheep are ranged in the mountains, but the fact that he is partly vegetarian and the location of most of the sheep range on the plains keep him from figuring very largely in the total.

These are the forces ranged on one side in the last range war. Against them are the biggest interests in the state—the cattle and sheep men; and more recently the sportsmen, represented by the Game Protective association. The predatory animals are more responsible for the depletion of game in the western states than all the hunters.

The accepted method of fighting wild animals is by offering a bounty for their scalps—a method that is proving so unsatisfactory here in New Mexico that a number of the largest owners are in favor of doing away with it. Besides the bounty system, many of the big ranches have a professional trapper or hunter regularly in their employ; and every cowpuncher is under orders to carry a gun whenever he is on the range in order to shoot any predatory animal he may encounter. Only last week a cowpuncher in a machine was a helpless spectator while a big timber wolf pulled down a steer. The motorist had forgotten his rifle, and before he could get close enough to frighten the wolf away, the steer was lost.

Some of the defects in the bounty system are essentially apart of it, and others are outgrowths of local conditions in this state. The chief and inseparable weakness in a bounty system is the fact that the trapper makes his living by catching wild animals. Hence he is out to catch them—but not by any means to exterminate them, which is what the cattleman wants. If he exterminated the animals, his livelihood would be gone. Hence his method is apt to be to take the cream of the catch in a certain district rich in wild animals, and then move on to another, leaving enough members of each tribe to stock up the first district after a few undisturbed seasons. It has even been charged that professional bounty hunters will rope old wolves and raise pups for the sake of the scalp. Since the bounty on a wolf is $25, and the fur is worth something in addition, it is evident that such a system is as profitable as raising pedigreed dogs; but it is not much help to the stockman.

Even the most conscientious bounty hunter can not afford to kill out all the animals in a district, to the last one. He makes thirty or thirty-five dollars on each wolf he traps. As a business proposition, he can not afford to spend time and provisions on some crafty old animal that takes more than thirty dollars worth of effort to catch. So he catches the foolish and the juniors of the pack, and leaves the wise old patriarch on the range. It is just these latter that the stockmen want killed out. One big ranch had a man with a wagon on the trail of a single old "loafer," as the big wolves are called, for sixty days. That wolf's scalp cost about $300 by the time it was drying on the fence, but it was worth the money.

Besides the general weaknesses of bounty system, there are some special weaknesses in this state, and in other western states with a similar system. The bounties are paid out of county funds, and many of the counties are so rich in wild animals and so short of cash that their claims run four or five years without being paid. The trapper can discount his bounty voucher at fifty cents on the dollar to speculators in some counties; and the cattlemen's association has been paying a $25 bounty on wolves and lions caught on the county voucher in return; but such a proceeding is unsatisfactory at best. The trapper does not want to wait five years for his money, or take fifty cents on the dollar; and when bounties are only paid on animals caught on certain men's land, they breed freely elsewhere and spread. As one cattleman pointed out at the recent meeting, a wolf is a movable animal.

This last objection applies also to the employment of hunters by individual ranches. The hunter may kill all the animals on that ranch, but others will come in from the neighborhood. A statewide campaign, or a campaign covering a dozen states, is called for.

The latest development in the game is furnished by the United States Biological survey, which has put forward a plan by which a federal appropriation of $20,000 or more will be supplemented by a state appropriation of equal size, the whole to be used in employing expert trappers under the direction of the survey. There is some doubt, however, as to whether the state would decide to appropriate. Certain other local interests think the problem is a stockman's problem, and a state would tap every pocketbook. On the whole, it looks as though the range war is far from over. The wolves and the lions will continue to take toll from the invaders of the ancestral acres for some time to come, and they will fight a cunning battle to the end.

London Answers steps out to prove that a great part of the slang of today came originally from the social and shop talk of seafaring men. We are amazed at the writer's display of misinformation. Everybody knows that no slang ever came from any place except Shakespeare and the Bible.—Kansas City Star.

OLD LOOKS

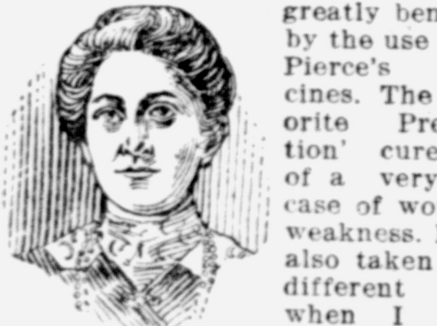

(BY DR. N. B. COOK)

Persons suffering from too much uric acid in the system frequently look older than they should. They age faster and the appearance of gray hair or baldhead in early years is, indeed, often a sign of uric acid. The face appears lean and haggard, lines and wrinkles appearing in young men or women.

The best way to combat this premature age and the obstruction to the arteries and faulty circulation is of the simplest. Drink copiously of pure water between meals. Obtain at any drug store a small package of Anuric which is to be taken before meals, in order to expel the uric acid from the system. The painful effects of backache, lumbago, rheumatism, gout, due to uric acid in the blood should quickly disappear after treatment with Anuric.

A MOTHER'S WISDOM

Stevens Point, Wis.—"I have been greatly benefited by the use of Dr. Pierce's 'Prescription' cured me of a very bad case of womanly weakness. I have also taken it at different times when I would not feel well and it always fixed me up in fine shape. I have given 'Golden Medical Discovery' to my son; he was all run down in health and it cured him in just a short space of time. I have also used the 'Pleasant Pellets' and they are equally as good. These medicines have been used in our family for many years. I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's remedies."

MRS. ELVIRA RICHARDSON, 223 Madison Street.

Pathephone

Opens The Richest Mine of Music.

Hear the greatest orchestras and singers of Europe on the wonderful Pathe Phonograph. Learn why the foremost critics here and abroad acclaim Pathe as the creator of a new era in phonographic reproduction.

Only With the Pathephone Can You Have An Unlimited Choice of Talent.

Because it is the only phonograph equipped with two reproducers to play the Pathe and every other make of disc records with absolute perfection. Thus every artist, player or musical organization of any note, whether European or American, is at the command of a Pathephone owner.

No needles to change. Pathe records are played with a Ball Shaped Jewel. This glides over the record smoothly without ripping, tearing or wearing it. The sound grooves are wider than on records of the ordinary kind. The ball shaped jewel comes in closer contact with all the tone vibrations on the Pathe records than is possible with records played in any other way. Thus a pure tone, remarkably clear and realistic, is obtained.

The records are double faced and indestructible. They range in price from 65c each to $4.00 each.

The Pathephones are priced $15, $25, $50, $75, $100 and $200.

ALL TIRED OUT

Hundreds More in La Crosse in the Same Plight.

Tired all the time;
Weariness and worn out night and day;
Back aches; head aches;
Your kidneys are probably weakened.

You should help them at their work.

Let one who knows tell you how.
W. S. King, painter, 1701 Market St., La Crosse, says: "Often the kidney secretions were irregular and painful in passage. I suffered from backache and pains across my kidneys. I was restless and got up in the morning feeling all worn-out. I used different medicines, but nothing helped me until I took Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at C. A. Begun's Drug Store. They soon made me well. I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago and I am glad to again do so."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. King had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

THEY WONDER IF SHEEP DOG HEROINE ESCAPED ALAUNIA

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—All along the docks and wharves shipping men are waiting to learn from London whether "Nellie," the English sheep dog and heroine-jinx of more than one sunken battleship, was saved when the Alaunia struck a mine and went down Thursday.

"Nellie," fought at the battle of the Marne, at the Dardanelles, and elsewhere and has ridden the waves on more ill-fated ships than most dogs ever see.

War enthusiasts when mobilizing British troops interrupted her sheep herding on an English downs in 1914. "Nellie" followed the troops to a transport and sailed to France. At Mons and the Marne she went through the roar of battle with her company, then boarded a hospital trawler for home. The trawler struck a mine and sank and Nellie was picked up by H. M. S. Majestic.

To the Dardanelles with that ship went "Nellie." She was one of the Majestic's survivors when that ship foundered on a mine. She swam ashore under a rain of Turkish shells, swam out again, boarded a British destroyer which five minutes later was blown to pieces, towed a drowning sailor to the Queen Elizabeth, and later was again invalided home on the Alaunia.

GREAT MASSACRE OF TURKS NEAR START

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 23.—An army of 1,200,000 will start an eastern and northern drive through the United States within a few weeks, it was announced here today. The casualties are expected to be enormous, particularly toward the last of November. Those of the invaders who survive are expected to be massacred shortly before Christmas.

The only Americans expected to suffer from the drive are the small boys who eat too much at Thanksgiving and Christmas. The invading army, by the way, will be composed of our national birds—turkeys.

H. H. Emerson of Temple, president of the Texas Poultry and Butter Shippers' association, predicts that Texas will set a new record in turkey exportation this fall.

GOPHER DEMOCRATS CHALLENGE HUGHES TO SPEAK AGAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 23.—"Hon. Charles E. Hughes, Hotel Astor, New York: Will pay all your expenses if you come to Minnesota week of October 30 and make five speeches. We need you."

"FRED E. WHEATON, Chairman Democratic State Central Committee."

This was the telegram sent to Judge Hughes Saturday by Fred E. Wheaton, head of the Wilson forces in Minnesota. Mr. Wheaton said that he meant exactly what he stated in the telegram; that Judge Hughes had hurt himself so much by his former appearance here, that he wanted to offer every inducement to get the judge back into the state again before election.

"If Judge Hughes accepts," said Mr. Wheaton, "Minnesota will go for Wilson by 25,000 plurality. As it is I expect to see Wilson get 25,000 more votes than his opponent in the state."

ANY WOMAN CAN SAVE $5 AN HOUR

Put gasoline and solvite in a wash boiler and dry clean everything.

Ever dry clean at home? Well, it's so easy, inexpensive and the results so pleasing you'll be surprised. Any woman can clean and renew the brightness of ribbons, silks, satins, laces, yokes, silk shirtwaists, kid gloves and shoes, furs, neckties, children's coats, suits, caps, swiss, lawn, organdy and chiffon dresses, fancy vests, veils, woolen garments, network, draperies, rugs, in fact, any and everything that would be ruined with soap and water.

Get two ounces of solvite at any drug store and put it in two gallons of gasoline where it quickly dissolves. Then put in the goods to be cleaned, rub a little and out they come looking as bright and fresh as new. You will find nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles, requiring no pressing.

Any woman can do five dollars' worth of home dry cleaning in a few moments and you can't make a mistake. LOCAL INDORSEMENTS CAUSED R. H. KELLOGG TO PURCHASE TANLAC

R. H. Kellogg of 620 Wis. Avenue, Sheboygan, is a clean-cut, pleasing salesman for a coffee cereal and well liked by all he comes in touch with. His work is confined mostly among the retail jobbers and grocers and they always have a pleasant word to say of him.

Mr. Kellogg was talking to Mr. Martin, the Tanlac man, a few days ago. He said:

"I am so well pleased with Tanlac, which you are introducing here just now, that I desire to have others profit by my experience."

"I had acute pains in my stomach after eating with a general heavy full feeling as if a rock had lodged in my stomach. I also had that run-down, tired out feeling which seems to be the fate of most commercial men. The constant change of food and changing of sleeping quarters nightly besides the riding on trains is upsetting and gets one out of regular habits."

"I bought Tanlac because I read the testimonials of Sheboygan people, in the paper, who had been relieved by its use. And since taking Tanlac I feel a general 'onion up' of my entire system and instead of so much discomfort after eating I enjoy my meals and have a feeling of great comfort and satisfaction. I take great pleasure in recommending Tanlac to others."

Tanlac can be obtained here only from C. A. Begun's Drug Store, where Mr. Henderson, the Tanlac man, will be glad to see you and tell you more about this wonderful remedy.

Tanlac can also be obtained from Geo. H. Seidel at Sparta.

POSTMASTERS MAY LEGALLY GIVE TO CAMPAIGN FUNDS

A Whitehall dispatch to the Milwaukee Sentinel, announcing that "the national democratic committee is levying tribute of campaign funds upon postmasters," and citing election expense affidavits of three Trempealeau county postmasters to the effect that they had contributed money to the state central committee, has occasioned considerable comment in political circles. The purport of the dispatch was that such contributions are in violation of law.

Chairman N. C. Bachellor, of the Seventh congressional democratic committee, announced this morning that no law prohibiting postmasters or other federal officers from contributing to such campaign funds exists, and that it has been the common practice of federal office holders, both republican and democratic, to so contribute.

Official records show that La Crosse county postmasters under republican administration had invariably contributed to campaign funds.

An investigation of the federal law made today discloses nothing to contradict the statement of Mr. Bachellor. The only clause in the federal corrupt practices act dealing with this subject is section 118 of chapter 321, covering the sixtieth congress, which is a provision prohibiting postmasters and other federal officers from soliciting campaign funds, but there is nothing therein which prohibits them donating to campaign funds. It is possible that confusion as to the provisions of this section led to the assumption erroneously reached in the Sentinel's article.

In the sixty-third congress (see Congressional Record May 14, 1914) Mr. Mann raised the point that campaign contributions by federal office holders were illegal. After lengthy debate and examination of the statutes, the house passed a resolution declaring them not illegal.
